As one of the LDS Church's most widely recognized scholars, Hugh Nibley is both an icon and an enigma. Through complete access to Nibley's correspondence, journals, notes and papers, Petersen has painted a portrait that reveals the man behind the legend. Starting with a foreword written by Zina Nibley Petersen (the author's wife and Nibley's daughter) and finishing with appendixes that include some of the best of Nibley's personal correspondence, the biography reveals aspects of the tapestry of the life of one who has truly consecrated his talents to the service of the Lord. The story begins prior to Hugh's birth with a prophetic blessing from John R. Winder, who was then serving both as the president of the Salt Lake Temple and as first counselor to Church President Joseph F. Smith, foretelling the importance of Hugh's work here on earth. It continues through Nibley's mission to Germany, his assignment to Army Intelligence for the 101st Airborne Division during World War 2 and landing on Utah beach on D-Day. After the war the story turns to Hugh's life working for the Improvement Era under Elder John A. Widtsoe, his promise to Elder Widtsoe that he would marry the first girl he met at Brigham Young University, and his subsequent marriage. It continues through Hugh's years of teaching at BYU, his study of many ancient texts, and his writing. Hugh has significantly influenced the direction the Church has taken in its approach to the Book of Mormon, the Pearl of Great Price, and the temple. He has touched many individual lives as he has urged the Saints to take the law of consecration more seriously, to respect the environment, and to work for peace. Finally, he has set a wonderful example of faithful discipleship, all while demonstrating how taking the gospel seriously liberates believers to feel joy, laugh at themselves, and relish the gifts of mortality.
