Myths of Modern Individualism: Faust, Don Quixote, Don ...

In their original versions, the ultimate fates of Faust, Don Quixote, and Don Juan reflect the anti-individualism of their time: Faust and Don Juan are punished in hellfire, and Don Quixote is mocked. The three represent the positive drive of individualism, which brings down on itself repression by social disapproval.

Myths of Modern Individualism: Faust, Don Quixote, Don Juan, Robinson Crusoe. Ian Watt. In Myths of Modern Individualism, the renowned critic Ian Watt treats Don Juan, Don Quixote, Faust, and Robinson Crusoe as "individualists," pursuing their own views of what they should be. The original Counter Reformation myths saw the individualism of Don Juan, Don Quixote, and Faust as a problem to be quelled by death or mockery.

In this situation myths can have value, as Tourmier says, because they are 'ways of saying no, of breaking up the social order', and 'of safeguarding a certain lack of adaptation of the individual to society'. Faust, Don Quixote, Don Juan, and Robinson Crusoe are all heroes of the individual will, of the self against the world, and that can be encouraging when the self is threatened.

Book description. In this volume, Ian Watt examines the myths of Faust, Don Quixote, Don Juan and Robinson Crusoe, as the distinctive products of modern society. He traces the way the original versions of Faust, Don Quixote and Don Juan - all written within a forty-year period during the Counter Reformation - presented unflattering portrayals of the three figures, while the Romantic period two centuries later recreated them as admirable and even heroic.

THE STORY Robinson Crusoe's father is a successful German merchant called Kreutznaer, who settled in Hull and later in York. The hero of the novel is Kreutznaer's third son; his surname is oddly corrupted to Crusoe, and he is called Robinson after his mother's maiden name. Even as a youth, Crusoe feels he has to go to sea.
