A humorous novel looks at the daily life of a married mother of two, who vents her frustrations via artful swearing, imbibing wine and a daybook where she attempts to offer tips on how to do various domestic tasks. A first novel by a New Yorker columnist and author of On the Rez. 50,000 first printing.

The nineteen Teaching Sessions presented in this book also explain the specific steps involved in conducting many ancient ceremonies that, collectively, can create a personal lifestyle that produces peace, harmony, and balance within the Sacred Circle of Life. The words to the songs associated with those ceremonies are printed in the Appendix.

of immigrants, Jan. That's what makes this nation so great! Our forefathers got kicked out of every respectable country in the world! Jan Sharanski would never see the humor in his wife's cynical joke. Having been born in America, she had known nothing but freedom her entire life. He, on the other hand, came from a world where freedom existed so long as no one asked any questions...and that Jan Sharanski, a partisan in the Polish underground during the Second World War, finds he must flee his native Poland for the United States in order to escape communist oppression. Arriving in Chicago, Jan settles in the city's Near-Westside Polish community. There, amidst the backdrop of the Cold War, the Chicago mafia, and the Daley political machine, he will build his life. In the process, Jan discovers that yes, America is the land of opportunity but sadness is also a part of that Great American Dream. Capturing the true essence of that American Dream falls to Jans daughter, Drusilla. Putting her faith in the Black Madonna, Drusilla sets out on her own personal quest to fulfill her fathers ambitions. Steeling herself in the rough and tumble world on the mean streets of Chicago, Drusilla will discover the love, hurt, pain, and success first known by her father. In the process, Drusilla Sharanski discovers her own appreciation for what it is to truly be an American.

As alien invaders amass a conquering army of zombies, a small band of rebels plans their resistance and revenge in this apocalyptic sci-fi series. The former Deputy Sheriff of Serenity, New Mexico, Jubal Slate lost his home and everyone he loved to the ever-growing zombie horde. But the zombies themselves are not the true enemy. It's the invaders from another planet who are using demonic technology to raise an unholy army of the living dead. For Slate, the only thing left in life is payback. Together with a motley band of renegades, he's making the treacherous journey to find the root of the global disaster. No matter how far he must go or how many undead warriors he must slaughter, they will stop at nothing to end the reign of the aliens.

Next in the series of the Ben Hunnicutt adventures, Red Star Down. Historically rich in detail and an excellent read! Ben Hunnicutt finds himself tasked with locating and salvaging a World War Two Russian aircraft which was wrecked and lost in the mountains of Alaska in 1944. Part of its cargo was a mysterious briefcase which had been manacled to the wrist of a Russian Colonel. The case contains documents which, even after three decades, would prove embarrassing to the Soviets if revealed. Word of Ben's mission leaks out. He and his friends are suddenly alone in a remote valley with a group of armed Russians who bear diplomatic credentials, but are determined to obtain the briefcase by any means necessary. Ben is distracted by the absence of his lover, FBI Agent Liz Nichole, who has been permanently transferred out of Alaska. This loss has made him careless and has blunted the instincts which usually guide him through perilous situations.

Winner of a 2015 Catholic Press Award: Family Life Category (First Place) In this lyrical adieu to her mother, renowned Catholic essayist, poet, and professor Angela O'Donnell explores how the mundane tasks of caregiving during her mother's final days--bathing, feeding, taking her for a walk in her wheelchair--became rituals or ordinary sacraments that revealed traces of the divine. With Joan Didion's grasp of grief, the spiritual playfulness of Mary Karr, and the poetic agility of Kathleen Norris, Angela Alaimo O'Donnell narrates the events that followed her mother's fall and the broken hip that led to surgery. As O'Donnell and her sisters cared for their mother's failing body during the last days of her life, they unconsciously observed rituals that began to take on a deeper importance. Bathing her each morning was a kind of baptism, the nightly feeding of pie took on a Eucharistic significance, trimming and polishing nails became a kind of anointing. Beyond the seven there are the myriad sacraments they made up: the sacrament of community via cell phone, the sacrament of wheelchair pilgrimage around the nursing home, and the sacrament of humor and laughter. This deeply human portrait of loss is balanced by the surprising grace found in letting go; it will resonate with any spiritual reader but especially caregivers and those currently in grief.

Is America on the brink of disaster? Could we wake up one day to find our world suddenly and dramatically changed? We live in a push-button world and we like it.
